Equal Opportunity Employer

Remaining in business in the construction industry for over 50 years requires many things: working as a team, employing people who share your values and commitment to excellence, holding your customers in the highest regard, holding yourself to the highest of standards, and remaining at the forefront of industry trends to provide the expertise and capabilities to service your clients' needs to name a few.

Since 1959, Circle B has prided itself in being an industry leader in the construction industry and our commitment to that continues to this day. Most people recognize us for our experience and expertise in exterior metal framing and sheathing, interior metal studs and drywall, ornamental plaster, acoustic and thermal applications, and spray-applied fireproofing. However, Circle B also provides another very significant service that has become increasingly important to building owners: Air and Vapor Barrier Systems.

Over the last few years, owners and those of us in the construction industry have become aware of the heightened importance of protecting against moisture infiltration and controlling air movement at the exterior wall assembly.

Air and vapor barrier systems have been designed to assist in this process and have become an increasing requirement on projects throughout our region. They are a key component to the lifelong integrity of any structure and the overall financial obligation of the owner to maintain it. And as with our other services, Circle B has positioned itself to help you address this ever-growing need on any project. Large or small, easy or complex, any season of the year, Circle B has the ability and resources to do the job right and provide our clients with long term peace of mind.

Give us a call today to find out what we can do for you. Whether it is for budgeting, bidding, or simply as a resource for information gathering in design, as the heading states, Circle B has your project covered from the outside in.
